Home Games in Bold - * MIAA Games ^ Doubleheader
Infield

Three of the four players that are currently projected to start in the Bulldogs’ infield are returning players.

Defensively, that familiarity should improve a double play unit that was already one of the best in the country last year. Truman led the MIAA and was 28th nationally with 0.91 double plays a game. Scully expects that number to go up because of the infielders he has returning and with having more groundball pitchers on the mound.

The newcomer in the infield is first baseman Sean Zaborowski, a transfer from Des Moines Area Community College and a former all-state high school athlete.

"Sean brings a good approach to hitting as he has discipline and the ability to use the whole field," said Scully. "He has shown developing power and in the field, has above average defensive skills."

Hall will be the backup first baseman for Zaborowski.

At second, Zach Cox is slated as the opening day starter. In 18 games last year, Cox hit .256 and had an on-base percentage of .347. He is an athletic player who handles the bat and knows the strike zone well.

A local Kirkville product, Kevin Harrison, will also play at second base. His best tool is his defense, as he has quick hands and feet.

Moving from second to shortstop this year is Patrick Hardin. "Zach will be an RBI guy for us," said Scully. "He has shown the skills to be a strong defensive player."

Barton also has a lot of potential as he learns and will work in the bullpen in conference action.

The team's closer once again is Dan Hillen. Hillen has saved four games in his career and has the best velocity on the team.

"Denny has the ability to pitch at the front of our rotation and this season, we will need him to show his potential," said Scully.

Barton also has a lot of potential as he learns how to pitch at the collegiate level. He has worked hard on his mechanics and could have a big impact on this year’s team.

Lawrence Scully became the fifth Truman head baseball coach on Sept. 1, 2000.

Since picking up a victory in his first game as a collegiate head coach, a 7-4 victory over Marietta (Ohio), Scully has balanced improving the program on the field while recruiting some of the top student-athletes in the conference.

In four years, Scully’s teams have earned 49 victories, the most by a Truman coach after four years. His first squad won five more games than the previous season and nearly doubled its winning percentage. In 2002, his team again improved in the win column with 15 victories.

The team recorded double-figure wins as well in 2003 and 2004. Last year, the team won 10 MIAA games, one shy of the school record. It marked the second time under Scully that Truman recorded double-figure conference wins.

Eight players have been named to the all-MIAA team since 2001, including two athletes on this year’s roster.

Off the field, Scully’s players have been named to the MIAA commissioner’s academic honor roll 44 times, the most of any conference school during that span. At least one player each season has been named to the CoSIDA academic all-district team and one, Nick Pianalto, was named to the 2001 academic all-MIAA team.

Another of Scully’s former players, Scott Theriault, was selected as a representative to the NCAA Foundation Leadership conference.

Scully came to Truman from Morningside College (Iowa) where he served as hitting instructor, outfield coach and first base coach in 2000. Morningside’s offense prospered under Scully, setting new single-season records for batting average, hits, doubles, runs scored and runs batted in. The team also set a new season standard for victories. He was also involved in scouting and recruiting at Morningside.

Scully’s experience is not limited to the offensive aspect of the game. Prior to his stint at Morningside, he served two seasons as pitching instructor and third base coach at Sioux City West High School in Sioux City, Iowa.

Scully was also the pitching instructor for Indian Hills Community College in Centerville, Iowa, from 1992-96. Over that span, Indian Hills reached the Junior College World Series three times. Seven of the hurlers Scully guided during his tenure were selected in the Major League Baseball draft.

Scully entered the coaching ranks after a collegiate playing career in which he spent time with both Indian Hills and Western Kentucky University. He was also a participant in the Canadian Olympic team program in 1987.

In the classroom, Scully earned a master’s degree in sport science from the United States Sports Academy and a bachelor’s degree in English Literature from Western Kentucky.

In addition to his experience, Scully also brings enthusiasm to the Bulldog program. “Its exciting,” he said. "Our goal is for each student-athlete to reach his full potential, both in the classroom and on the playing field.”

And along with his zest for the game, Scully provides an infusion of confidence for his young charges. "I told the team that I was in a program that one year finished dead last, the next we were in the conference championship. I know what it takes to run a successful program.”

Lawrence and his wife Theresa have two sons: Connor 7 and Kris 2 months. The family resides in Kirksville.
